HENDRICKS QUIZ A SURPRISE.

MORE SEARCHING THAN EITHER EQUITABLE PARTY EXPECTED.

H. Rogers Winthrop on the Rack Yester-Documents - Depew Preparing to Explain His $25,000 Yearly Salary.

H. Rogers Winthrop, the young assistant secretary and financial manager of the Equitable Life, was the third officer of the society examined by State Superintendent of Insurance Francis Hendricks, assisted by his counsel, Congressman M. E. Driscoll. Supt. Hendricks yesterday put Mr. Winthrop through an ordeal of questioning fully as severe as that to which Vice-President Hyde was subjected on Wednesday and President James W. Alexander on the day before. With the exception of an hour at lunch time, Winthrop was on the stand from 11 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the afternoon yesterday.

There were a few personal questions which Supt. Hendricks wanted to ask Mr. Winthrop. He wanted to know, for instance, whether it is true that Mr. Winthrop, with scarcely any business experience, was put into office by his friend Mr. Hyde at a yearly salary of $30,000.

The Superintendent wanted to know also whether the charge is true that Mr. Hyde uses a large part of Secretary Win-throp's time in matters which have nothing whatever to do with the Equitable's busi-

It was Supt. Hendrick's chief purpose though, in putting Mr. Winthrop on the rack to get from him all that he knew as financial manager of the society regarding loans and syndicate transactions in which directors and officers of the society

To this end he had Mr. Winthrop bring with him to the directors' room in the Equitable Building all the records available in his department. It took four able bodied men to carry the records and documents.
Under Mr. Hendricks's direction the financial manager pointed out in the books
the entries which the State Superintendent and his lawyer desired to examine. Mr. Winthrop also was questioned in regard to his official relation to these transactions. Mr. Hyde was not put on the stand again yesterday but his examination has not ended. He will be called again when Supt. Hendricks hears what other directors and officers in the society have to say in regard to the operations of the "James H. Hyde and Associates" underwriting syndicates and other features of the Equitable scandal in which Mr. Hyde is especially interveted.

ble scandal in which Mr. Hyde is especially interested.

That the serious way in which Supt. Hendricks has started the examination has been a surprise both to the Alexander and the Hyde camps became evident yes terday. Neither side had any idea that the examinations would be conjucted without the presence of counsel and neither anticipated that every word spoken in the room would be made a matter of record in the Insurance Department.

As a result, both sides were worked up yesterday over what the other may have said before the Superintendent. Both were holding conferences a greater part of yesterday discussing the situation.

The Hyde conferences began as early as 9 c'olock in the morning, when G. B. Alexander of the law firm of Alexander & Green called at Mr. Hyde's house, 9 West Fortieth street, with H. H. Knowles, the deposed superintendent of agencies, and W. H. MoIntyre, the society's fourth vice-president. This confablasted for about an hour and them Mr. Alexander hurried over to the Hotel Astor and had a half hour's talk with Supt. Hendricks.

It was said later that the subject of the ander hurried over to the Hotel Astor and had a half hour's talk with Supt. Hendricks. It was said later that the subject of the conference at Mr. Hyde's house was the relation of certain Equitable directors to the syndicates which underwrote Shipbuilding securities, and that Mr. Hyde was preparing a pill which Gage E. Tarbell would have to swallow when he came before Supt. Hendricks for examination. Both sides are engaged now in throwing all the available material possible into the Superintendent's hands.

soon after Mr. Hyde reached his office in the Equitable Building another conference was called between Senator Depew and Mr. Hyde at Elihu Root's office. Nother definite confidence to the conference was called be accorded about this ing definite could be learned about this, but a report had it that Senator Depew. knowing that he was to be called before the Superintendent to explain the annual salary of $25,000 which he has been drawing from the Equitable, desired to profit by Mr. Hyde's experience before the superin-

Mr. Hyde spent the most of his afternoon in conference with his lawyer. Samuel Untermyer, and many of his supporters. Shortly before the conference ex-Superintendent of Jesusages 100 Paym was ware. snorty before the conference ex-superintendent of Insurance Lou Pavn was seen to enter Mr. Hyde's office. He was there for some time. It was denied for Mr. Hyde, however, that Payn attended the conference. It was not said what the nature of Mr. Payn's visit was. All the men in the State Insurance Department, from the first deputy down are it was as from the first deputy down, are, it was as-serted yesterday, the same as when Mr. Payn was as the head of the department.

President Alexander as a trustee of the Hyde stock and to compel an accounting of the trust will probably be served to-day. It is understood that Mr. Hyde will allege in the complaint that the report that the cost of his recent fancy dress ball was paid out of Equitable trude and the stories that out of Equitable funds and the stories that improper dances were held there were a part of the conspiracy against him.

DISMISSAL FOR FALSE ARREST. Spencer Charged With Insulting Women, Too-Lawyer Says He'll Appeal.

Oscar B. Spencer, a policeman who has been doing plainclothes duty for Capt. O'Connor in the Delancey street station, was tried yesterday at Police Headquarters on charges of false arrest and misusing a prisoner. Third Deputy Police Commissioner Lindsley, who heard the case, found him guilty and recommended his dismissal from the force. Lawyer Louis Grant, who from the force. Lawver Louis Grant, who defended Spencer, declared later that the decision would never stand in the courts, to which the case would be appealed. According to the testimony Spencer was in a Fourteenth street restaurant at midnight on April 15, and in paving his check exhibited a roll of bills. Harry A. Martin, an expressman, said something about the roll to which Spencer took exception. Martin was arrested. His wife and mother-in-law, who were with him. and mother-in-law, who were with him, went along to the station house. It was charged that Spencer used insulting language to the two women and struck Martin. Both sides had several witnesses.

THOMAS F. WILLIAMS DEAD.

For Years Stenographer for Charles A. Dana-Why He Was Called "Skipper." Thomas Frederick Williams, who since 1870 had been connected with THE SUN, died yesterday morning at his home on Staten Island of pneumonia, after an illness day-Four Men Needed to Lug in of a week. It was the third attack of pneumonia he had suffered in a year. He took cold while preparing his boat for the opening of the fishing season. He was a noted angler in the waters about New York and was so well known that many of the local craft were in the habit of saluting him when they saw him in his boat in the bay. He was born in Ireland in a suburb of Dublin in 1842. He was educated at the College of St. Francis Xavier, or the "Belvedere College," as it was more familiarly called. He went through the preparatory and part of the collegiate course at St. Francis Xavier and then became a reporter on a Dublin newspaper with which his father was connected. He was also editor and almost the entire staff of the Longford Register, which he controlled for a time. In these years he spent a brief period in London and Paris. Toward the close of the civil war he came to this country. For a while he was stenographic reporter for the House of Representatives in Georgia, and later he went Florida, where he remained for a brief period, doing stenographic and reporting work in various cities. When he went back to Georgia it was to exchange for a shotgun the property he had bought there and move further north. He was in Maryland and Virginia before he settled in Washington. Here he was private secretary to Gen. O. O. Howard of the Freedman's Bureau during the most troublesome times of its history, and later he became a stenographer under Dennie Murphy, the official Senate reporter. Afterward he worked under Henry Hays and was attached during the greater part of his stay to the Washington Intelligencer.

Mr. Williams was always keenly interested in the Fenian movement, which was expected to make such headway in the United States after the end of the war of the rebellion. He belonged to the American branch of the association and was a delegate to the Eastport convention. He was also one of the company that took down the British flag at Indian that took down the British flag at Indian Island and was fired on by a man-of-war. "Skipper" Williams as he was always called from his delight in his boat and in being on the water, used to say in his later years that this undertaking was not nearly so bloodthirsty as it sounded. He was the least qualified among the men to have a hand in the enterprise, as most of the others had bad military experience in the war.

hand in the enterprise, as most of the others had had military experience in the war. He did not have this advantage, and more than once it was necessary for his commander to reprimand him.

In 1870 he came to New York, and after working on several other newspapers became permanently attached to The Sun. The late Charles A. Dana until his death dictated all his writings and correspondence to him. For a while he held a post as a court stenographer and was one of the a court stenographer and was one of the first to found a large office devoted to this work. He wrote with interest and authority on matters pertaining to yachting and his favorite sport of fishing.

Mr. Williams was married in 1874 and soon afterward moved to New Brighton. He had been a widower for twelve years. Five daughters and a son survive him.

Frederic J. de Peyster, head of the historic family of that name, died on Wednesday at Lakewood in his sixty-seventh year. He was born in this city on Feb. 5, 1839, and was in the seventh generation from Johannes de Peyster, founder of the family here, who de Peyster, founder of the family here, who came from Holland to New Amsterdam about 1645. He was best known for his connection with educational and charitable institutions and patriotic associations. He was one of the founders of the Archaeological Society and its president until 1899. He was also treasurer of the American School for Classical Studies and had been president of the Holland Society, of the New York Dispensary and of the St. Nicholas and Orpheus societies. He was governor general of the Society of Colonial Wars and belonged to the University, City, New York Yacht and Down Town clubs, the American Geographical Society, the New York Historical Society and the National Academy of Design. Mr. de Peyster died of angina pectoris. When he arrived in Lakewood late on Tuesday night he was apparently as well as ever. At 11 o'clock Wednesday night he was ever to the De Peyster home in New York, and with her son and three daughters Mrs. de Peyster was hurried on in a special car, arriving at o'clock. Mr. de Peyster was to have made the address of the evening at the banquet of the New Jersey Society at the Laurel-in-Pines last night. He was married in 1871 to Miss Augusta Morris, who, with five children, Helen Van Cortland, Frederick Ashtou, Francis Goodhue, Augusta Morris and Ella Morris, survives him. He will be buried from Trinity Church in this city to-inorrow. Edward F. De Selding & Flatbush died yesterday morning of pneumonia at his home, lifeaton street, in his seventy-seventh year. He retired from law practice several years ago. He was one of the incorporators of the Adelphi Academy. STRONG SWIMMER SAVED ONE HARLEM RIVER CANOEIST.

Peter Hughes Sucked Down by Eddles-Survivor Says Cries Were Unheeded by Crew of Craft That Swamped Thom Howard Grandel's Brave Struggle.

Peter Hughes, 22 years old, an electrician, ving at 5191 Broadway, was drowned in the Harlem River yesterday. Louis W Larney, 22 years old, also an electrician, Broadway, a chum of Hughes, was rescued.

Both were employed in the power house of the Metropolitan company at 225th street and Harlem River. They were members of the Kingsbridge Canoe Club. They had entered a cance race on the Harlem River for next Sunday and they have been spending all their spare time practising. They left the ol b boat house at the foot of 218th street yesterday afternoon for a spin, and they had paddled out into the center of the stream when Tug 2 of the Harlem River Towing Company, whose boats dock at the foot of Lincoln avenue, went past them. The tug was going south at good speed and the swell from it overturned the canoe.

As it capsized both young men cried out to attract the attention of those on the tug. Larney says that the tug wasn't 100 feet away and that the crew saw the plight of his chum and himself. There was a strong undertow and both Hughes and Larney went to the bottom of the river. Larney came up near the upturned cance and caught hold of it. Hughes came up fifty yards away and with a final cry went to the bottom again. Larney had great difficulty in holding on to the canoe, its sides were so slippery. It was drifting down the river rapidly and the current was so strong that he was almost exhausted. Howard Grandel was in Allan's boat house, near the clubhouse, when he saw Larney holding on to the

A score of men began to dwag the river for Hughes's body, and they recovered it late in the afternoon near High Bridge. It was taken to the Alexander avenue station. When Coroner O'Gorman heard the story he sent a message to the office of the towing company, saying he wanted to see every man, including the captain, who had manned Tug 2 in the afternoon. The tug had tied up for the day and all the crew had gone home.

Coroner O'Gorman left word that he wanted to see every one of the crew to-day. He will subpens them to the Hughes in-quest.

M'CLELLAN BY ACCLAMATION Is the Suggestion of John Brooks Leavitt of the Citizens' Union.

The sentiment in the Citizens' Union in favor of indorsing the renomination of Mayor McClellan has the support of a considerable number of the leaders.

At one of the gatherings of the executive committee John Brooks Leavitt is said to have presented a point blank resolution committing that body to advocate the renomination. Because of the pledge of secrecy which has been exacted from every member of the committee concerning their deliberations Mr. Leavitt declined to say yesterday whether or not he had introduced such a resolution or to answer any questions relating to the feelings with which his colleagues received the resolution. But he added:

"I am willing to say that it is my individual opinion that it behooves the citizens of New York, without regard to party. to consider very seriously whether Mayor McClellan ought not to be renominated by acclamation. I fully realize that his administration is vulnerable at points, and that the Tammany tiger is still like the leopard and has not changed its spots.

"I believe that Mayor McClellan has not always been able to avoid doing some things which he did not want to do, but he has stood for the right in ways that I never expected any Tammany nominee would or could do. "If he were renominated by acclamation he would have a freer hand in the future. and my faith in nim, begotten by his own works, is now enough to make me believe that he would be equal to such a situation.

"In conclusion I should like to say that in my humble judgment the non-partizan principle of the Citizens' Union requires it to recognize every good effort of a munici-pal administration, whether made by Tam-many officeholders or otherwise."

MANY WILL FIGHT RETIREMENT. Mr. McAdoo Won't Discuss It-Protest

Filed-Capt. Reynolds's Fret. When Police Commissioner McAdoo was reminded yesterday that some of the captains and inspectors whom he retired on Thursday were going to fight through the courts, he ducked the issue. Asked point blank what he had to say about it he replied: That is for the courts-I will not discuss the subject." Later Mr. McAdoo said he had heard that Capt. Edward J. Kenny of the Atlantic avenue station, Brooklyn, was reporting regularly every morning at his desk for duty. Mr. McAdoo had no comments to make.

Capt. James Reynolds, who used to be in command of the Brooklyn detective bureau, has retained former Police Commissioner Bernard York as counsel. Yesterday morning he waited in front of Police Headquarters for three hours for an opportunity to serve Commissioner McAdoo with a protest against his dismissal. He got his chance at noon as Mr. McAdoo entered the building.

"Do I look like a sick man?" he demanded as Mr. McAdoo took the paper. The Commissioner admitted that he didn't. Reynolds had heard that the board of police surgeons, which recommended his retirement, reported that his feet were not up to the standard. He started to take off his shoes. "Will you look at my feet?" he asked.

Mr. McAdoo didn't reply. He just hurried up the steps.

Lawyer Louis Grant, who was attending Lawyer Louis Grant, who was attending the police trials, said that he had been retained by Inspector Smith, Capts. Foody and Shire and several of the retired sergeants to look after their interests. He would apply to-day, he said, to Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court for an order on Commissioner McAdoo to show cause why his clients shouldn't be reinstated. The application would be made, he said, on the ground that Mr. McAdoo couldn't dismiss the captains and inspectors without a formal complaint and trial.

Corset shapes are most subtle. Not infrequently a corset simply fits well in its first fitting-on. But the real test comes in the wear when the garment is shaping into the form.

Discomfort usually comes from inaccurate grading. Redfern Models are so accurate in the grading of each size that each model seems accustomed to individual need.

In attendance is a special corsetiere, trained by the designer of Redfern Models, who will see that you are properly corseted in the "new fashion."
